DR. M. JACKSON

Living with Ice: Glaciers and Climate Change

Geographer, glaciologist, TED Fellow, and National Geographic Society Explorer Dr. M. Jackson has dedicated her life to examining climate change where people and melting ice meet. She will talk about her experience living and working directly with communities impacted by climate change – specifically melting glaciers – share her insights, and offer an inclusive approach to understanding climate change.

Thu, November 3 | 11:15 a.m. | Free
Stromberg Hall (HSS 165)

Sponsored by the SMC Associates, SMC Global Citizenship, and the SMC Earth Sciences, Life Sciences, and Physical Sciences departments.
